ECONOMY OR SUPPLY:

According to the Bureau of Labor and Statistics, the state of Nebraska added 20,747 jobs, year-over-year (YOY), as of February 2022. The number of employed workers in Nebraska's workforce also reached an all-time high of 1,034,720 in February. During the same timeframe, the Leisure & Hospitality sector saw the largest amount of job growth, increasing by 8.3%. The Omaha market added 7,500 jobs YOY, while the unemployment rate dropped to 2.6%. The national median household income rose by 2.2% YOY, ending the first quarter of 2022 at $65,700. Local median household income growth isn't far behind, increasing by 2.0% over the same period. However, Omaha's median household income average surpassed the national average, reaching $70,800 in the first quarter of the new year. Big changes are on the horizon for the Omaha metro. Plans have been announced for a skyline changing office tower to rise downtown, that will be the tallest building in the city. In addition, patrons will have a new transportation option, as plans for a modern streetcar are in the works. The streetcar is expected to run through the city's urban core.

SUPPLY OR DEMAND:

The Omaha office market recorded its fourth consecutive quarter of positive activity, ending the first quarter of 2022 with 98,237 square feet (sf) of positive absorption. The market also experienced a substantial vacancy change, declining by 310 basis points (bps) YOY. In the first quarter of 2021 Omaha's office vacancy rate was recorded at 16.8%, compared to the 13.7% recorded in the first quarter of 2022. As seen in previous quarters, vacant space in new construction often causes the vacancy rate to temporarily spike, until the new inventory becomes occupied. There were no office buildings delivered for the quarter, which played a part in the vacancy decline. All absorption was a direct reflection of occupancy changes. Though Omaha's office sector is healthy and continues to see positive growth, momentum may appear sluggish. As a result of the pandemic, construction has temporarily slowed down and many office using tenants closed their doors or downsized. However, multiple quarters of positive absorption and a declining vacancy rate are key indicators that the market is on the fast track to recovery. In addition, 58 new leases were signed within the quarter, totaling 326,541 sf.

PRICING:

Average asking rents increased by 9.2% YOY, reaching $25.48 per square foot (psf) by quarter close. More than 95.0% of the new office inventory delivered from first quarter 2021 to present, are Class A properties, which yield higher rents. Class A rents in these new properties are averaging $35.70 psf, full-service gross and driving rent growth upward. The Suburban West Dodge submarket fetches the highest asking rent in the metro, as this area is home to majority of the new Class A properties that are rising.
